

Latour Capital surpasses its fundraising target in less than a year and closes its €400m small cap fund, with four deals already completed

Paris, April 2026

Driven by strong investor demand and with four investments already secured (including two carve-outs), Latour Capital returns to its origins by deploying its proven investment strategy in the small cap segment.

Originally launched with a target size of €250 million, Latour Small I far exceeded this objective, reaching a €400 million final closing less than a year after launching the fundraising. This oversubscription, in a challenging market environment, reflects the confidence of long-standing Latour partners, and the trust of new institutional investors from the United States, Canada, the Middle East and Europe, including the Nordics.

To support the deployment of this new strategy, Latour has significantly strengthened its team, welcoming 12 new professionals over the past year across the investment team and support functions. Notably, Maxime Picat, former C-suite executive at Stellantis, joined the partnership at the start of the year, bringing extensive industrial expertise and further reinforcing Latour's operational DNA.

Less than one year after its first closing, Latour Small I is already ~30% deployed. Latour has secured four transactions (two already closed), including three primary investments. In line with Latour's operational expertise, two of the deals are carve-out operations, one of them in Spain. The fund's co-investment program is already being deployed.
